The Widening Chasm: Why Capitalists Can No Longer Contain the Positive Energy of the Masses

1. The Division of Worlds (The Objective Chasm)

The system is traversing a profound, widening gulf that cannot be bridged by reformist compromises. This is the absolute divergence between the social character of modern production and the private, high-frequency hoarding of its fruits.

The Polarization: On one side of the chasm is the capitalist "ninth heaven" of co-located Wall Street matching engines, automated volatility-harvesting siphons, and high-tech torture devices like the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) G.L.O.V.E.. On the other side is the working-class "ninth hell" — the physical, material base where the living labor capacity of the people is ground down under the weight of 22-hour blackouts, withholding of earthquake relief, and declining real wages.

Universal Estrangement: Under capitalism, this chasm manifests as a universal estrangement of individuals from themselves and from one another. The two classes no longer inhabit the same social space, speak the same language, or share a common reality.

2. The Nascent Expression & The Will-to-Be

The people are positive. Despite the relentless bombardment of media-manufactured panic designed to induce a cringing, defensive subordination, the raw, biological will-to-be of the working class cannot be extinguished.

Spontaneous Rebelliousness: This positive energy is the spontaneous, instinctual reflection among human beings of what they are struggling against in society. It expresses itself every day in the raw, uncoordinated impulses of workers refusing to cross picket lines, communities organizing mutual aid post-earthquake, and youth rising up against state-sanctioned borders.

The Embryonic Stage: However, because the anti-consciousness of capitalist society projects the illusion that there is nothing to find out, this positive energy remains in a perceptual, embryonic stage of cognition. It is a "class-in-itself" — fully aware of its immediate, localized oppression and possessing an irresistible desire to react, but lacking the unified, three-dimensional conceptual framework to understand its own historical task as a "class-for-itself".

3. The Liquidating Role of Revisionism and Social Democracy

This is where the capitalist class deploys its most dangerous, highly specialized defensive mechanism. Because the capitalists cannot directly police every spontaneous outbreak of class struggle, they rely on the opportunist, revisionist, and social-democratic labor aristocracy to act as their primary fire-extinguishers.

When young, spontaneous organizations emerge from the positive energy of the masses, the social democrats and revisionists step in to liquidate them on command.

They achieve this through three systematic operations:

Preaching Class Conciliation: They preach class conciliation, collaboration, and compromise, insisting that the fundamental, life-or-death contradictions of society can be resolved peacefully without striking at the root cause, without struggle and revolution against capitalism and its state power.

The "Lesser-Evil" Ruse: They function as the charlatan "healers of capitalism", telling the workers to abandon the "hopeless dream" of revolution and instead participate in the "safe" electoral circus. They attempt to subordinate the independent political movement of the working class directly under the wing of the so-called "progressive" section of the capitalists (the Democratic Party).

Dividing the Totality: They slice the unified, vertical struggle of the working class into a series of isolated, horizontal pressure groups and special interest silos. By pitting native-born workers against foreign-born workers, or trade union demands against community survival, they keep the masses locked in a closed-loop conflict. This drains the masses' revolutionary kinetic energy into a sterile vacuum, allowing the state's vertical extraction pipelines to continue siphoning wealth undisturbed.

Moving from Spark to General Conflagration

By identifying this precise contradiction — the positive, spontaneous energy of the masses versus the liquidating role of social democracy and revisionism — we realize that we cannot afford to let the workers' movement develop spontaneously. To do so is to hand our youth and our organizations over to the opportunist butchers.

If we lag behind the awakening of the masses, being unable to lead them forward, we commit the fatal error of tailism, which inevitably leads the revolution to defeat.

Our role is to act as the organic catalyst. The mass workers' press must function as an enormous pair of smith's bellows. We do not lecture the masses; we help them drop the heavy lodestone of absolute material facts directly onto the narrow-minded, reformist, and chauvinist illusions of the labor aristocrats.

By unmasking the bipartisan cartel's oil thefts, exposing the G.L.O.V.E. as an instrument of state terror, and showing how the social democrats built the very legal scaffold for this plunder, we strip the revisionists of their "humanitarian" cover. We provide the conscious expression that fuses the scattered, spontaneous sparks of indignation into a single, unified, and vertical torrent of revolutionary action.

An Exposure of Speculative Capital and High-Voltage Torture in the United States

The modern imperialist state operates on a carefully guarded delusion: that its high-tech, digital networks exist in a weightless, virtual cloud. This theater is a lie. The digital wire of Wall Street is connected directly to the conductive copper thread of the torture glove. They represent the twin terminals of the exact same circuit of state-monopoly capital.

Terminal A: The Superstructural Siphon (The Truth API)

If you open a Bloomberg Terminal, Reuters Eikon, or any institutional trading platform and pull up the one-minute candlestick charts for West Texas Intermediate (WTI) or Brent crude oil futures at exactly 10:04 AM Eastern Time on August 17, you will see a towering, vertical green spike. Within the first ten seconds of Trump's threat to bomb Oman, early-access, high-speed trading algorithms harvested an estimated $1.3 billion in risk-free profits before the ink on the news was even dry. Checking these candlestick charts on institutional terminals provides the direct, verifiable coordinates of this heist.

This microsecond robbery is executed through a predatory, parasite-infested Pension Hijack. Under capitalist law, the retirement savings of typical working people—teachers, firefighters, and factory workers—are held hostage by financial administrators. The system legally compels these pension funds to pay an extortionate $100,000 monthly fee for early-access WebSocket feeds of the "Truth API" just to prevent high-speed bots from front-running and draining our retirement savings. These co-located machines—physically situated inside the stock exchange's brain to eliminate internet lag—execute trades in 2 milliseconds. This is over 150 times faster than the 300 milliseconds it takes for a human eye to blink in reflex to danger. Wall Street is literally using working-class retirement funds as speculative ammunition, forcing domestic workers to become involuntary, old-age financial accomplices in the millisecond-by-millisecond slaughter of families in the Global South to line the pockets of the finance aristocracy.

Terminal B: The Physical Base (The DHS G.L.O.V.E. and the Geography of Raids)

While the financial superstructure siphons wealth, the base-level enforcement machinery relies on raw physical terror. The Department of Homeland Security (DHS) has posted a $20 million no-bid solicitation to equip officers with the CTG-5 G.L.O.V.E. (Generated Low Output Voltage Emitter). Delivering a massive 380-volt electric shock directly to bare skin, this device forces absolute physical compliance in under three seconds without leaving burns or scars, enabling unmarked physical torture under the cover of administrative custody. Just as the bankers sanitize microsecond robbery as "Best Execution mandates," the state sanitizes high-voltage torture as a "conductive distraction and de-escalation device."

The border is not a natural physical feature; it is a violent reification—a historically contingent class relationship turned into a physical "thing" of concrete, razor wire, and high-voltage gloves to enforce class division. The state uses this reified barrier to execute a violent, legal abstraction on physical human bodies. The moment a worker crosses this line, they are stripped of their concrete class identity and abstracted into a legal zero—the category of "illegal alien." Reduced to this abstraction, specific workers (highly concentrated by national identity in poultry plants, agricultural fields, and construction sites) can be subjected to targeted ICE raids and 380-volt shocks with complete administrative impunity.

This loop is currently tearing itself apart in systemic chaos. The capitalist economic base demands the physical importation of migratory labor to depress wages, but the political superstructure demands their violent exclusion to maintain social control. Unable to manage its own legal abstractions, the ruling class is locked in a frantic congressional debate to dismantle birthright citizenship. This is an engine of planned instability, aiming to codify a permanent, stateless, intergenerational caste of workers on the very soil of the empire.

The Closed-Loop Flow of State-Monopoly Capital

These two terminals form a single, self-regulating circuit of exploitation. The bipartisan state manufactures geopolitical crises to harvest billions in speculative profits via the Truth API. These superprofits cycle through the state treasury, where the legislature appropriates millions to fund repressive police contracts like the CTG-5 torture glove. In turn, these shock gloves are deployed inward to terrorize, discipline, and disenfranchise the pre-emptively criminalized domestic labor pool. This state-enforced terror depresses wages universally, bloating the corporate profit margins that fuel the speculative bubbles that the HFT algorithms and the Truth API exploit, seamlessly closing the loop of capital extraction. The digital siphon and the electric glove are structurally indivisible; to destroy the glove, we must smash the siphon.

Overcoming the Social-Democratic Vise

When the masses witness this violence, social-democratic leaders perform their systemic task: liquidating spontaneous resistance on command. Reformists like New York Attorney General Letitia James demand "civil rights lawsuits" or "officer recertification" to divert working-class anger into the sterile channels of the capitalist election circus and the "lesser-evil" trap of the Democratic Party.

Liberal reformists like Senator Tim Kaine are already stepping into the vacuum to sell their toothless constitutional illusions, attempting to channel the workers' spontaneous anger into harmless legislative reform rather than active class resistance. By parading his War Powers resolution through Congress, Kaine attempts to redirect the righteous rage of the working class into a harmless legislative swamp, pretending that a paper vote in a capitalist senate can tame a war machine that both parties systematically fund.

The working class cannot regulate, reform, or lobby this system. The only path to survival is to smash the bipartisan war cartel, reject all class-collaborationist coalitions, and fight for Democratic Renewal—constituting our own independent, mass public authority that vests sovereignty directly in the people themselves.
